

The U.S. Army Europe Soldiers Chorus is stationed at Sembach Kaserne in the Kaiserslautern Military Community.

In 1981, The Soldiers Chorus was attached to the United States Army Europe Band. Unlike their band colleagues, the singers do not enter the military as musicians. Rather, they are selected through competitive auditions from other specialties within the Army, and receive intensive training in vocal skills.

The ensemble is one of only four full-time choral groups in the Army, and the only one located outside of the continental United States.

The Soldiers Chorus presents more than 200 performances each year and has appeared in several European countries. Whatever the specific requirement, the men and women of the United States Army Europe Band and Chorus continue to represent the best the United States Army has to offer.
